If you are a person that distrust yourself you should totally read it. It would help you with your problems, if you are sad, it would make your day only by answering those rare but helpful questions. You should read it, it is AWESOME...... I am only 13 years old and it help me with a lot of things. It would make you think. There are some innecessary, and weird questions that make you think "why in the world I am answering to this questions" "I am crazy" but you would like it. I LOVE IT!!!!!. Just pick a number between 1 and 3,000 -- just watch what happens. Feb 09, 2019 Katherine rated it really liked it I'm only half way through this book, but it's so fun and it's something to do with my spare time that feels more productive/thought provoking than watching tv. My only complaint is that a few questions feel repetitive or reworded but still asking the same thing. Otherwise, this would be 5 stars! Jan 20, 2021 Grant Keegan rated it really liked it After almost three long years, I have finally finished 3000 Questions About Me. It was a long, grueling task, but I feel like it was all worth it, because I have left behind something very important. This journal has served not only as a way to know myself, but also as a time capsule that I will keep forever, and in the future look back at how I viewed the world in my early adulthood. It was a long, grueling task, but I feel like it was all worth it, because I have left behind something very important. This journal has served not only as a way to know myself, but also as a time capsule that I will keep forever, and in the future look back at how I viewed the world in my early adulthood. As the title says, this book contains 3000 questions that the reader will have to answer one-by-one by writing in it with a pencil. The questions are great, although some of them repeat several times. They range a lot, there were some that were very silly and menial like "If you were an animal which one would you be?". But there were others that were difficult to answer, even painful at times. My favorite questions were those that were deeply engaging and philosophical. They felt more like writing prompts, but I enjoyed them nevertheless. If you are someone like me who enjoys documenting their life in every way possible, then I highly recommend this journal. You might find things that you didn't know about yourself, and it might serve as a form of catharsis by writing down painful memories or decisions one has made.
